

Invitation: The Education for Sustainable Living Program is requesting proposals from graduate students, undergraduates, and community members to lead action oriented research groups related to sustainability in our campus community.

The Mission: The purpose of these “action research teams” is to involve students in a process of experiential learning by collaborating with faculty, staff, administration, and community members to implement tangible change at our university. Specific areas of focus could include, but are not limited to:

Food Systems & Agriculture
Community Development
Green Building
Transportation

Renewable Energy
Environmental justice
Public policy
Religion and spirituality

The Course: The Education for Sustainable Living Program is an interdisciplinary effort to realize sustainable community throughout the University of California. Weekly seminars by renowned authors and progressive thinkers explore aspects of sustainability ranging from green chemistry to the role of spirituality in our community. Ultimately we aim to inspire participants to internalize the concept of sustainability and apply it in practice to life.

The course will be offered Spring Quarter 2011. Students who enroll in the seminar receive 2 units and those who participate in “action research teams” receive 4 units. Leaders of “action research teams” are eligible to earn up to 4 units of academic credit.

Deadlines: If you are interested in coordinating an “action research team” please express interest TODAY! We ask you submit a general project proposal by Wed., March 9th. We will review your proposal, then work with you to prepare specific project guidelines by the beginning of spring quarter. Please contact us for more information!
