

Suicided Under Difficulties.

R. L. Mosbey, a blacksmith, hung himself in the county jail at Powhatan a few days after he had killed his wife. The cause of the shooting was jealousy. Mosbey was 53 years old and three children are left orphans. The ceiling in the cell being low, he tied his legs akimbo so that his feet could not touch the floor. He burned a rope from his bed with matches to do the fatal act.
